NEWPORT SEASON DULL JUST YET

Things That Will Be Talked About

Some of the Pleasures of Home-Staying.

PERSONAL NOTES

compelled to stay in town are taking all the comfort possible out of the situation and are managing to pass their days and nights in a fairly satisfactory way. Serious illness in various households has changed many long-arranged plans, and made home a certainty for the most of the summer. Those who are blessed with health and strength, even in face of the discomforts caused by the terrible heat, feel more than contented with their lot, as compared with their friends, whose anxiety for and devotd care of loved ones make them almost as much the subject of concern as ily. the invalids themselves.

A clever woman and a noted hostess, who so enjoys the companionship of her husband that she will never leave for a summer vacation until he is able to accompany her, says that she never wants for company in summer. After a long car ride one evening last week the couple found just seven left-in-town husbands and fathers waiting to enjoy the charm of their society for an hour or two. This is repeated night after night, so that whatver else enjoyment they may have missed chances of brightening up their friends with a bit of home cheer have not been denied them. The waiting interval for the day to leave town has not been a bore by any means, but just the contrary.

The element of surprise or whatever other sensation the Corbin-Patten engagement may have caused will have been completely exhausted by the autumn, when the un-deniably happy principals will be back from wedding ceremony. Therefore the details of another wedding which will not occur in Washington, but which will create a tremendous whirl of excitement, will fill the public eye, so far as the newspaper world is concerned, just at the proper moment, when it needs new matter and new comment. There will be a wedding in the household of a high official, and the latter will be the groom, say the gossips who usually know what they are talking about; and it sounds reading just now that in naming over the eligibles it is not necessary to mention any of the lately bereaved.

They may go off in the meantime, but are not considered in the present case. The lady in question has every charm which a na-tive wit and a thorough training can add to youth and a thorough training can add to youth and beauty. And the gossips say the wedding day is likely to be fixed for the busy days of the opening of Congress and the debutante tea.

The Newport early season wilted under the heat, but from the scores of invitations abroad great things are promised. There are probably other people doing some en-tertaining, but the Stuyvesant Fishes are reaping their usual glory both in what they have done and what they contemplate do-ing. Nearly all the cottagers whose hospitalities are on a large scale are on hand. and the chances for an especially gay sea-son seem particularly bright. Things are nor will not be till a few weeks later. The resorts in the Adirondacks or on the Mas-sachusetts coast rarely have feature events, but perhaps the dwellers there have all the better time for that.

Market Master's Report.

The District Commissioners have received the annual report of W. H. Williams, market master of the Georgetown Market, in which he says:

"I have the honor to submit to you the operations of the Georgetown Market for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1901. This is a small market, containing only twentytwo stands to rent at $5 per month for each stand, twenty of which are rented and two are vacant. The rear of the market is set apart for the farmers, very few of whom attend, because they have no space in which they can keep their wagons. Therefore they have to put their produce in the market and take their teams away. The business of the market is limited in consequence of there being so many pro also, which captures nearly all of the trade in the town.

"I would respectfully call your attention to the great need of painting the market and whitewashing the walls. "The receipts were: For rent of stands, 150; collections from farmers, $196.50. Total, $1,346.50. And expenses as follows: Salary of market master, $900; salary of laborer at market, $240. Total, $1,140.

Suburban Railway Fares.

From the New York World.

Interesting comparisons with New York are suggested by recent parliamentary rethan 20 cents. The cost increases gradually with the distance, but a man may ride twenty-five miles daily for gix days at a cost of 40 cents per week.

In England, France and Germany volun-tary reductions are made at hours when workingmen are going to and from work, street railway fares of 2 cents being accepted for considerable distances at workngmen's hours, and suburban trains at low rates are in many cases afforded. There are in this country valid political objec-tions to the classifying of suburban traffic as it is done in Europe; but is there any good reason why service which costs in Belgium from 20 to 40 cents a week should cost here 60 cents by street car or $1 or more by commutation ticket upon suburbar an ounce, and it was very much the style for women of wealth and refinement to be seen spinning their own silk for fancy work. In 1830 a craze was developed in this country for the raising of silk worms. Although this industry came to a very unprofitable end between the years 1839 and 1843, it originated certain business concerns which struggled on through the years of slow growth until the protective policy adopted subsequent to 1860 ushered in a more prosperous era. The industry is now firmly established. Inasmuch as the United States is on an equal footing with European countries in the matter of raw materials, the future of the industry depends upon the development of a skilled body of em-ployes, the perfecting of labor-saving de-vices and progress in artistic lines. Danger in Olives.

From Good Housekeeping.

Eminent physicians prescribe olives largely for all sorts of nervous diseases, for indigestion and gastritis. They warn only against poor olives, which are far from healthful. A perfect olive is of a yellowish green tinge, hard, and when bitten the mouthful is entire, not mushy nor spongy. The stone should have a pinkish color, and the smell ought to be fresh and agreeable the smell ought to be fresh and agreeable.

Beware of poor clives as of poison. Frequently during a voyage a barrel will burst or leak and the brine escape. They reach New York dry, withered and dark colored. Still, there is always some dealer ready for a bargain. The clives are bought at bargain-counter prices, pickled and plumped in brine or vinegar and sold.

They may be discovered by their cheapness, their coor, like new, wet sele leather, their softness and their dark hue.

ington last night for their former home, at Canton, Ohio, where they are to spend the remainder of the heated term, except that the former may visit the Buffalo exposition and come on to Washington for few days. They were accompanied by Secretary Cortelyou, Dr. P. M. Rixey, several clerical attaches of the White House and servants. The party occupied the private cars Olmypia and Hungary, the President and Mrs. McKinley being assigned to the former. The cars were attached to the regular 7:45 western express on the Penn-sylvania railroad. Mrs. McKinley, as she boarded the train, showed unmistakable evidences of her recent severe illness in the thinness and pallor of her face, but she moved with alacrity from the carriage, boarded the train without any material assistance and appeared to be in a contented and cheerful state of mind and quite at the departure of the train. visits to Washington, and probably one to the Buffalo exposition, it is likely, will be the extent to which the President will be away from Canton during the summer. Before her departure last night Mrs. Mc-Kinley gave to each of the trained nurses who have been with her throughout her long illness a heavy gold band ring, appropriately inscribed on the inside. To Miss Ellen Hunt the inscription was: "Ida McKinley to E. H." The ring to Miss Sarah Taylor was likewise inscribed. Miss Sarah Taylor was likewise inscribed. Hunt has gone back to California, her home, while Miss Taylor accompanied Mrs. McKinley to Canton, and will remain there with her this summer. The President also presented the young ladies with suitable their devotion to duty and care of Mrs. Mc-Kinley.

NAVAL DEFENSE MINING.

Squadron Drill.

A dispatch to the New York Herald from Newport, R. I., says of the practice cruise of the North Atlantic squadron. The naval it will be a prominent feature, is of such recent origin that it has never before been employed by the United States navy. The primary effect of the naval mine is to provide a means for the rapid mine defense of a temporary naval base where the exigencies of the situation do not permit of the establishment of a regular mine field such as guarded American harbors during the Spanish war. The mine is supposed to be of further value for the quick defense of ports not provided with regular mine fields, and also for the speedy closing of channels left open for traffic in regular mine fields.

In the coming operation the mines first used will be of the buoyant contact type, fitted with small detonators, which will instantly resent the impact of a vessel's hull. These will be countermined by small boats from the fleet. The approaches will then be planted with observation mines having electrical connections. It is probable that the ships will attempt to run them at night, after which countermining will again be resorted to.

The countermines that are to be used are sheet iron cases which, under actual service conditions, would be filled with 600 pounds of wet gun cotton. Unlike the mines, no anchors for countermines will be supplied, their own weight being sufficient will be by means of a small vessel, spesmall and speedy steamer. As the counterto the next mine, which will be let go in the same manner, until all are dropped. When all are down and the boat clear of the explosion which would result if the mines were actually loaded, the line will be fired from the steamer, which will be fitted with an electric battery especially designed for this purpose. It is estimated that it will require a line of six countermines, dropped at intervals of 190 feet, to clear a channel 180 feet wide and 1,080 feet in A sham battle between the defending force, which will consist of the marines of the fleet and the attacking ships, has been talked of, but not yet decided upon. The squadron arrived at Woods Holl last night, and will proceed to Nantucket on Monday. If the weather proves thick or unfavorable for target practice or cruising in the sound waters the ships will begin landing and mining drill on Monday, postponing the rest of the program until that s completed.

THOMAS W. HALL DEAD.

ist and Soldier. Maj. Thomas W. Hall, a prominent journalist and editorial writer for the Baltimore Sun, died last night at his residence in Ruxton, a suburb of Baltimore. Maj. Hall was a native of Baltimore where he was born in 1833. He studied law in the University of Virginia, and soon after being admitted to practice at the bar engaged in journalism as editor and one of the proprietors of the Baltimore Daily Exchange and afterward as editor of the South. He took part in many battles in Georgia, Tennessee and Virginia. At the close of the war Maj. Hall resumed the practice of law and be-came a member of the editorial staff of the Baltimore Sun in 1870. His articles on subjects involving questions of international and constitutional law were quoted in all the leading journals of the country.

ROTTEN EGGS FOR DOWIEITES. Twenty-One of His Disciples Roughly Handled in Evanston

last night, and despite the efforts of the entire police force a mob of 1,000 people drove them out of town. Several days ago four of Dowie's mis sionaries were egged and driven out of Evanston, and last night's visit of the twenty-one was intended to convert the people of Evanston and show them the error of their ways. The instant the Dowleties began their meeting last night they were assalled with eggs, vegetables and other missiles. The guard of policemen was too small to afford much protection, and the crowd soon began to hustle the missionaries along the street in a manner that looked serious.

Chief of Police Knight called the entire police force to the rescue, but it includes only thirty men and was unable to cope with the mob. Several of the male Dowleites were knocked down, and both men and women were liberally bespattered with eggs and mud. The missionaries finally abandoned their meeting and fled from the town, the police protecting them as they ran for the cars. Investigating K. P. Investments.

Investigation into the causes which led former officers of the Supreme Lodge of the Endowment Rank of the Knights of Pythias to make certain alleged injudicious investments was begun in Chicago yesterday. Seven officers of the society, comprising the board of control, went into secret session and heard evidence dealing with the investments. The board of control will make a report to the convention of the Supreme Lodge July 10.

Non-Union Men Forced Off a Train by Strikers.

A dispatch from Charleston, S. C., last night says: A special train bringing in twelve non-union men, hired by the Southern railway to take the places of striking machinists at the Southern railway shops, was held up by friends of the strikers at the Enston Home switch this morning, and a moment later the frightened passengers were hurled to the ground. The switch was turned three minutes after it had been set for the special. The object in this, the railway officials say, was to cause a stop, and while the switch was being set right the crowd rushed on the platform of the coach, forced open the door and took the non-union men out.

While the demonstration was exciting, no actual clash of arms arose, as the men on the special train seemed frightened, and got off without a serious protest. After this the new men got scattered and no effort was made by the railroad officials to get them together for work in the shops.

TO STOP FISHING WITH DYNAMITE.

Canadian Authorities Give Notice Regarding the Grand Manean Grounds. A special dispatch from Ottawa, Canada,

"Reports having reached the fish department that American and Canadian fishermen have been in the habit of using dynamite in fishing on Old Proprietor Ledge, off Grand Manan, New Brunswick, some correspondence has taken place with the British home authorities on the subject. It is understood that the authorities at Washington have also been given an intimation that the dominion does not propose to allow the illegal practices to be continued off Grand Manan, either by its own people or by the Americans, and that any person found dynamiting fish in Canadian waters thereafter will be punished with the ut-most severity and their boats or vessels seized. It is pointed out, moreover, that American fishermen have no rights within the three-mile limit off Grand Manan, as ome of them have assumed that they pos-

GOES TO PUBLIC INSTITUTIONS. Bulk of Millionaire Rogers' Estate Given to Art Museum.

The Metropolitan Museum of Arts Is made the residuary legatee of the late Jacob S. Rogers, whose will has been filed for probate at Paterson, N. J. It probably will receive between $7,000,000 and $8,000,-000. If for any reason the Metropolitan Museum of Arts does not accept the gift, it will go to the New York Society of Libraries, the New York Historical Library, the American Museum of Natural History at New York, the General Society of Mechanics and Tradesmen and the Mercantile Library Association. The will was made June 2, 1892. At that time Mr. Rogers estimated his estate to be worth $8,000,000, but now it is believed that the estate is worth much more, some The bequests of the will are as follows:

Columbus R. Rogers, a brother (now deceased), $190,000; Ella A. Rogers, daughter of Columbus, $25,000; Julia Edith Gel-latly, daughter of Columbus, $25,000; the

MRS. NATION ARRESTED AGAIN.

She Threatened to Demolish a Saloon in St. Louis

Mrs. Carrie Nation's threat to wreck the saloon of Oheim Bros., in Walnut street, tonight resulted in her arrest by the police. She was conveyed in a patrol wagon to the station, but released by Capt. Reynolds, who informed her that if she created another disturbance she would be locked up. Mrs. Nation was in town for a few hours, being on her way to Crawfordsville, Ind. As she passed Oheim Brothers' saloon she, turning to some men standing near, began lecturing them about the drink habit. Her words were spoken in a loud tone and a crowd soon gathered. Taking from her handbag a nickel-plated hatchet, which Prominent in Baltimore as a Journalshe is selling as a souvenir of her saloon wrecking career in Kansas, she brandished it and started for the front door of the saloon. She was stopped by the men. Fearing that she might carry her threat into execution, the bartender blew a police whistle and a patrolman soon appeared. He took the woman to a patrol box and summoned the wagon. Some one in the crowd recognized Mrs. Nation and informed the officer who she was. While waiting for the wagon Mrs. Nation addressed the crowd, which by this time numbered 600.

At the station Mrs. Nation vehemently arraigned the police department for not putting down the liquor traffic. She was finally allowed to depart after being warned that she would be locked up if she ed that she would be locked up if she created another disturbance.

From the police station Mrs. Nation went to the Union station and departed for Crawfordsville, Ind., where she is to stand trial tomorrow for attempting to wreck a saloon several days ago.

NO CHECK REIN ON HORSES.

Citizens of Roanoke, Va., Advised to Follow a Washington Style. from the Roanoke (Va.)) Times. A Roanoke gentleman who is much interested in the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, returning from a recent trip to Washington, said that one thing which struck him especially there was the absence of check reins from the horses. He said that not only were the horses allowed the use of their heads, but they were free from this torture of high reining. There is much meat for thought in this. The question is naturally asked, Why is it necessary to rein horses up at all? If reining is necessary in order to make the animal more useful, then it is extremely peculiar that horses in Washing-ton do their work so well without it. Sure-ly there is no difference between horses in Roanoke and horses in Washington when it comes to that. In fact, it is against common reason to argue that a horse or any other animal is worth more with his head doubled back at right-angles to its natural position. That being so, the practice of reining must come from a desire to be in style, a desire which is, to say the least,, in this case, somewhat inconsistent, as styles change. They have changed in Washington, but the check rein is still answering its fiendish, cruel purpose here in Roanoke.

One would think that people who are so zealous in following the fashions in the height of the collars, the shape of their shoes and the size of their trousers at the knee would pay some attention to the fash-ion in regard to reining. They appear to believe it to be incumbent upon them to bob their horses' tails. That is purely a bob their horses' tails. That is purely a fad. Why not take up another as well? Horsemen discourse upon the advantages of high reining on the trotting courses. They perhaps know what they are talking about, but one does not see them driving their thoroughbreds over country roads or leaving them standing for hours in the sun with their heads drawn back. If asked they would most likely say that a horse which would most likely say that a horse which is worth having will hold its head up with is worth naving will noid its head up with-out artificial props, and that it is usually the cheap plug that owners are trying to prod into some sort of show that has to be reined in order to pass for more than a
